POP GAME B-ROLLS - GAME FOOTAGE (NOT OUR GAME)

Recordings of various video game related footage shows on the screen in rapid successions, as though someone is flicking through channels on a television. A narrative voice appears to commentate.

NARRATOR

Ah, gaming. The final frontier in a locked down world. A virtual escape where all you hope for is a "GG". But back in the real world, we cannot play video games forever... Well... I mean we could, but it would be highly irresponsible.

The narrator pauses as though to have a moment of inflection before continuing.

NARRATOR

We have all been spending a lot of time at home trying to survive these crazy times. For some it is an enlightening experience, for others an unwelcome hindrance. But for a large portion of our society, this has brought about the greatest cataclysm of all...

THE FAMILY IS TOGETHER - CHARMING STILLS OF HAPPY FAMILIES

The scene shifts to a picture-perfect representation of a family in bouts of affection and brightness.

NARRATOR

We are stuck at home with... OUR KIDS.

The image zooms in to the beat of a "DUN-DUN-DUNNN", focusing on the happy children.

NARRATOR

With schools no longer able to tame the wildebeests we call our children it falls to our greatly incapable hands to find a way to educate and entertain the rugrats. "But Narrator" I hear you say, incredulously. "I just want to drive fast cars, eat fast food, and run the fast cycle on my washing machine! I have no time for the gentle caress of education! I can only manage the swift backhand of "iPad parenting!"!"

Images of kids on their tablets/phones flash one after the other, followed by a slow crawl through a case study of "Improving Learning Outcomes: The iPad and Preschool Children with Disabilities".

NARRATOR

Indubitably, bright screens, fun touch interfaces, and the black hole of moving images we have "YouTube", have fast taken over the sticks-and-hoops of yesteryear. Case studies on the effect of technology on children have had riveting results, leading to long papers of text without pictures.

MATH GAME SHOTS - INSERT TITLE SPLASH FOR MATH GAME

Addition, subtrAction, multiplicAtion, and Div...A...sion... da... dAvision... mAth.)

The screen attempts to enthusiastically visualize the acronym to expected results. The narrator practically cuts himself off as he tries to move away from the topic.

NARRATOR

knowledge and appreciation of mathematics
through Math Game's soon-to-be classic quests such as: "this + that equals cricket bat", "I'll learn your statistics, but graphs are where I draw the line", and
*"Average-N-gers: Infinity (War) divided by (above scene will include images to relate to the quest names, yet to be designed)
